"Erin, oh Erin, though long in the shade,
Thy star will shine out when the proudest shall fade."

The day we honor the universal patron saint in every land under the sun. Where civilized man has fought his way around the globe, in the frozen North and the fetid jungles of the tropics, Out West and Down East, there is St. Patrick revered on his own day, and there everybody's favorite color is green, for "the poor exile of Erin" has made every spot on earth a bit of Old Ireland. As Moore so finely expressed it:

"Though the last glimpse of Erin with sorrow I see,
Yet wherever thou art shall seem Erin to me."

Senator King at last discovers what's the matter with Haiti—like the cowboy who was thrown out of the dance hall three times, they don't want him in there.

Secretary Mellon's analysis of the war debts is scientifically impregnable, but happily the time has not yet come when a government official in Washington can hope, by writing a letter to a college president, to exercise a censorship over the free and unlimited intellectuality—if any—of American universities.

As Harry Sinclair is convicted of contempt of the Senate, it is interesting to recall that Hallet Kilbourn, of Our Town, once got a judgment of $100,000 against the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives for being sent to jail on a similar charge—and that he didn't collect it. Here is a verdict that will make the Investigating Committee Cock of the Walk.

If Mr. Sinclair does have to go to jail he probably won't find the fare to his liking, and doubtless he won't be as ingenious as Mr. Kilbourn was while in durance vire, for when the House found out what he was doing down there on the Eastern branch, he was living on the fat of the land and charging the contingent fund for dinners, with wine, at $40 a throw. It was cheaper to let him out.

Folks down in West Palm Beach who start a run on the postal savings bank when they hear that Uncle Sam is broke, got their income tax date slightly mixed—it's Uncle Sam's nephews and nieces who are broke.

Gentlemen who drink their liquor to tickle their brains and not their palates aren't going to be much upset by this new denaturant for the alkies.

Young Andrews knows—at least he thinks—

You'll hold your nose to take your drinks;

But we suppose that many ginks, (As down it goes in spite of stinks, Although it throws 'em all in kinks, Will think it rose, or maybe pink.)

Seized as a run ship last summer because somebody had 15 bottles of liquor aboard, an American vessel is finally released, but who is going to reimburse her owners for this great loss?

Things are getting so lawless in Shanghai now that a Washingtonian could probably go out there and feel perfectly at home in one day.

Maybe the police would better keep their patrol wagons in the garage and get all their tips on shootings from the Garfield hospital doctors.

Representative Gibson is going to study conditions in Washington this summer in London, Rome, Berlin and Paris, but we have an idea he will give more tips than he gets.

It's about time some efficiency expert came back from the Boulevard des Capucines with the report that what this town needs is some sidewalk cafes with little white and gold tables.

Senator Jim Reed is so determined that if necessary he'll finance the slush fund committee himself. There's nothing like having a billionnaire client.

Remarkable cure is reported from New York this morning—Court Ludwig's broken heart has been repaired by a generous application of fat.

Ho for palm oil!

No more Salm oil.

Secretary Mellon is reported to have picked a former naval officer to be the new prohibition Pooh-Bah, but will the Antisloon League stand for anybody who is web-footed?

Did two-thirds of both Houses of Congress propose the Eighteenth amendment, or was it done by two-thirds of a quorum, and if so, will Wayne B. Wheeler admit it's unconstitutional?

FORD IS ACCUSED OF FALSE CHARGES IN FACE OF FACTS

Cooperative Marketing Plans Given to Him, Attorney Asserts.

SUIT FOR $1,000,000 MAY TAKE 60 DAYS

Counsel for Plaintiff Goes Into Allegations Against Sapiro, One by One.

Detroit, March 16 (By A. P.)—A varicolored picture painted by Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent of a Jewish combination reaching its tentacles into the pockets of the farmers and world affairs was denounced today by William Henry Gallagher, counsel for Aaron Sapiro, who is suing the automobile manufacturer for $1,000,000 on charges of libel.

One by one he took up the charges which, his client claims, injured his reputation as an organizer of cooperative marketing organizations, and when court adjourned had still several points to bring out in his opening statement.

It's world-wide conspiracy of Jews existed, Aaron Sapiro knew nothing about it, Gallagher declared, neither was he a member of a ring spreading communism or bolshevism throughout the country, instilling the ideas of "red" Russia in the minds of the children. Sapiro had never been concerned with organization of farm boys and girls' clubs, having confined his activities to cooperative marketing associations, he said.

Product of the Mind.

"As to charges contained in the independent regarding a so-called Kahn-Baruch-Lasker-Rosenwald-Sapiro program to turn over to an organized international interest the entire agricultural industry of the country," said Mr. Gallagher, "they are entirely unfounded, evidence will show."

"Ottino Kahn, it is true, made a few contributions to farmers' organizations and did other high-minded citizens such as Robert H. Bingham, of the Louisville Courier-Journal and William Randolph Hearst, Bernard Baruch, I believe, made a few loans but no contributions, while F. D. Lasker as head of an advertising concern, handled some publicity for a cooperative concern. Julius Rosenwald had nothing to do with them.

"We will show that this whole idea of organized Jewry to take advantage of the American farmer is a product of the mind and the statement that Sapiro was backed by a Jewish combination in his organization is entirely without foundation."

Judging by the time taken by Mr. Gallagher, who began his opening plea yesterday to outline what the plaintiffs intend to prove, attorneys for both sides agreed that the trial probably would last 60 days. His declaration contains 141 points on which evidence will be introduced.

Ford Had the Facts.

Attorney Gallagher told the jury that Ford and the business manager of the independent had been informed by a committee of the intentions and working of the cooperative marketing organizations formed by Sapiro. Publication of a series of alleged libelous articles then ceased for a while, he said, but were soon resumed. The articles accused the Chicago man of exploiting the farmers and with spreading communistic propaganda.

Cooperative organizations of all kinds in Oregon, Kentucky, Texas, California and the old South which Sapiro had helped form were mentioned in excerpts from the Dearborn Independent, which Mr. Gallagher read. All of these

Police Hunt Boy, 4, Believed Kidnapped

Arlington county police are searching for Raymond M. Bennett, 4 years old, who is believed to have been kidnapped yesterday afternoon while playing in front of the home of Mrs. Mildred Kew, 222 Murray avenue, Virginia B. Fields has notified police of Richmond and other Southern cities to watch for the child.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Arlene Bennett, placed the boy in care of Mrs. Kew when she separated from the boy's father, who lives in Ola, N. C. The boy was picked up by two men in an automobile.

Civil War Widows' Pension Bill Dies

(By the Associated Press.)

The plea of Congress for bigger pensions for civil war widows has been turned down by President Coolidge. Exercising his privilege of "pocket veto," the President has pocketvetoed the bill passed in the closing days of the session, increasing from $30 to $40 monthly the pensions of civil war widows over 75 years of age.

With expiration of the ten-day period after receipt of the bill, White House officials say the measure is dead letter. They decline to say what considerations led to the veto.

MRS. EDWARDS, CLEARED, WILL BURY HER HUSBAND

Funeral to Be at Home; Homicide Justifiable, Coroner's Jury Says.

BOY TELLS OF SLAYING

Having killed her husband and having been exonerated by a coroner's jury, yesterday, Mrs. Anna Susan Edwards, mother of three children, is now confronted with the task of burying him.

The body of the husband, John O. Edwards, will be buried from the home of the widow at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The coroner's jury yesterday decided that the shooting was "justifiable homicide," and United States Attorney Peyton Gordon announced that the verdict was acceptable to him. There will be no further legal action in general.

Rail Service Is Attacked.

Particular efforts have been directed by these men to disorganize traffic on the Shanghai-Nanking railway, the train control and telephone systems being tampered with. Yesterday the intimidators forced 30 engineers and fremen and the whole locomotive staff of the Shanghai South station to desert.

Inspector Harrison of the police department, made an investigation of the affair and decided it apparently was an accident. Mary was the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Sut.

Girl's Body Crushed.

The girl was terribly crushed by the heavy weight of the patrol wagon. The policeman placed her in the patrol wagon and took her to the hospital.

The girl's younger sister, Christine, was with her. She was taken to her home by a passing woman motorist.

According to A. R. Harrison, of 1115 Ninth street northwest, who has offices in the International building, the police patrol was not sounding its gong when it crossed the street. He also charges that the policemen did not handle the girl carefully after the accident, but sat her upright on a seat where one held her upright with his hands.

While heavy fighting was reported south and northwest of Shanghai with an increasing menace to the city of Nanking, reports were received from Tokyo indicating that the breach between the adherents of Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian war lord and the Soviets was widening.

The Tokyo report suggested that southern Manchuria was threatened with an armed invasion. If this possibility should become serious it is felt that Chang Tso-Lin, who now is the moving factor behind the allied northern armies in their drive on the Cantonese, might be deterred from venturing.

The policemen denied that they did not sound the gong and declared it was ringing at the time of the accident.

Fall From Parallel Bars Kills Student

Army Officer Killed; Body Left in Street

Atlanta, Ga., March 16 (By A. P.)—The body of Lieut Waldo S. Ickes, 35, of the United States army, was found on the street here today. Apparently he was the victim of an automobile accident. He was a native of Culver, Ala., and connected with the army finance office of the fourth corps headquarters here.

An unidentified person telephoned to a hospital here that a man had been hurt. When the ambulance arrived at the scene, the body of the officer was found. One leg had been broken and death apparently was due from internal injuries.

Regimental Race Won By Prince of Wales

Bicester, England, March 16 (By A. P.)—The Prince of Wales, riding one of his own hunters, won the Lord Mansfield cup in the Grenadier Guards regular point-to-point race at the Bicester hunt meeting today. There were fourteen other entries.

The prince rode a well-judged race and finished a length ahead of the second. He received a great ovation.

Datu Piang's Tribe Rise Against Leader

Manila, March 16 (By A. P.)—A dispatch to the Bulletin from Zamboanga today said an uprising of Alangkats tribesmen had been reported in Cotabato province. The outbreak threatens to become serious.

Tribesmen were gathering in groups armed with blades and other weapons making threatening gestures against Datu Piang, wealthy leader whom they call "the devil."

Several killings and some burnings and looting were reported recently from Cotabato, and Provincial Governor Gutierrez asked the Philippine constabulary for reinforcements. Col. Stevens of the constabulary will depart tomorrow for a conference with the Alangkats leaders.

Officials of both banks declared the Zeigler institution was in sound condition with resources of more than $1,000,000.

Woman, 102, at Party; 330 Guests Above 60

New York, March 16 (By A. P.)—Mrs. Mary Schultz was 102 years old yesterday and 330 of her friends, not one of them under 60 years of age, gave her a birthday party at the home for aged and infirm Hebrews. There was a cake with 102 candles. Quite a few in the party were around 90 years of age.

TERROR IN SHANGHAI SPREAD BY KILLINGS LAID TO AGITATORS

Murder a Day Held Part of Preparations for General Strike.

BATTLES UNDER WAY; NANKING IMPERILED

Invasion of Manchuria by the Soviet Forces May Add to Complications.

Shanghai, March 16 (By A. P.)—Terror is stalking in the teeming native city of Shanghai as a result of a mysterious series of murders and the corresponding spread of a story that groups of Cantonese agitators are carrying on strong-arm agitation in preparation for a general strike when the nationalists become ready to take over the Shanghai administration.

The patrol wagon, driven by Policeman Q. E. Heyne, was going north on Twelfth street in its way to answer a call at Twelfth street and New York avenue. Mary, with six companions, was crossing from the west side of Twelfth to the east on the north side of G street. The other girls saw the patrol wagon and stopped, according to Policeman Heyne, but Mary broke away from the grasp of one of the girls and ran in front of the patrol. She was knocked down and run over by the left front wheel.

Policeman Unnerved.

Policeman Heyne was unnerved by the tragedy and was relieved of further wagon duty for the evening. He remained in the station house, however, until midnight, when his relief arrived. No charges were placed against him. An inquest will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the District mortuary.

Inspector Harrison of the police department, made an investigation of the affair and decided it apparently was an accident. Mary was the daughter of Mrs. Margaret Sut.

DE BRODES INNOCENT OF SLAYING MOTHER, IS VERDICT OF JURY

Rules Former Embassy Employee Was Insane When Parent Was Shot.

SISTER FAINTS IN COURT WHEN VERDICT IS GIVEN

Sought Acquittal on Facts as Presented by Counsel, Not Mentality.

George Victor De Brodes, former employee of the American embassy at Paris, and more recently employed in the field office of the veterans' bureau in New York, charged with the murder of his mother, Mrs. Frances De Brodes, was found not guilty yesterday by a jury in criminal court after an hour's deliberation.

The jury found De Brodes was insane, that he was suffering from an epileptic seizure when the shots which killed his mother were fired, June 16, 1923, at 117 C street northeast, and was not legally responsible for his mother's death. De Brodes appeared yesterday with the widow of his sister, Mrs. Lillian G. Walker, became hysterical when the verdict was announced and swooned. It is seldom that the jury inquires into the defendant's mentality in cases of this sort, especially when the defendant has sought acquittal on facts as presented by counsel.

The most conspicuous thing about the De Brodes trial was the lack of a murder motive, although the indictment accused the son of having deliberately and with premeditated malice killed his mother. The prosecution followed the theory of the police that De Brodes was so worried about his financial condition and the illness of his mother and his sister, Miss Pauline De Brodes, that he planned to kill his mother and himself and thereby dispose of what appeared to him unsolvable problems.

Attempts to Prove Theory.

The nearest the government came to proving this theory was in De Brodes' admission that he planned to shoot himself and also in the testimony of Policemen Bridges and Leigh, who said De Brodes admitted he shot his mother and that he intended to kill himself, but that the pistol would not work.

The testimony of De Brodes and that of his witnesses tended to offset the theory of the prosecution which had said he had got over the notion of killing himself when he arrived in Washington from New York the day of the tragedy. The witnesses testified De Brodes was an exceptionally dutiful son. He denied he planned to end the life of anyone but himself and even then, he said, he changed his mind when he realized the futility of self-destruction.

There were no eyewitnesses to the death of Mrs. De Brodes. The testimony showed she was struck by a bullet from a pistol held either in her own hand or in the hand of her son or held in both of their hands in a struggle over possession of the weapon. De Brodes said he opened a safe in his room in the Hotel Marlboro to show his mother some proofs of the pictures of his fiancee, Miss Mary Terese Bays, who was present. The bullet split partly out of the case and was seized by Mrs. De Brodes according to the coroner. She said she seized either the weapon or the hand of his mother, he said, and after that, he testified, all was blank until he was being treated by a physician for an epileptic seizure.

The testimony of several defense witnesses showed Mrs. De Brodes was of an excitable, erratic nature and the defense attorneys contended the son, knowing of his mother's mental peculiarities, did the proper thing in attempting to take the pistol from her. Mrs. De Brodes said when Mrs. De Brodes seized the pistol, she fell.

STANDARDS TRACT FOR PARK IS BACKED

Connecticut Avenue Association Endorses Project to Acquire Wooded Land.

Use as a park of 80 acres of wooded land, comprising the extent of a valley, adjoining the bureau of standards, was backed by the Connecticut Avenue Citizens' association last night in the James F. Oyster school. Twenty-ninth and P streets, between 15th and 16th, are the site of the park project.

The association explained the park project. He declared that the matter had been presented before the National Capital park and planning commission, and that it would probably pass upon it at the next meeting.

He expressed the hope that the recommendations of the commission would approve the project, provided sufficient funds are obtained.

The park would preserve a fine wood tract, he said, and would connect Rock Creek park with Glover Park.

CITIZENS' STREET CAR MERGER FIGHT URGED

Call Attention to Public Sentiment, Frampton Tells Dahlgren Terrace.

Citizens' associations last night urged to work for a street railway merger by Hugh M. Frampton, chairman of the zoning committee of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, at a meeting of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens' association in the Social Oyster club, Twelfth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast.

After explaining the benefits of a merger, Mr. Frampton said the public last year paid $10,000 in fares to the street car companies. Thirty-four percent of the public favored the merger of the public favored the merger when the hearing on the question was held last November, and action, designed to call the attention of the public utilities commission to the public sentiment, should be taken, Mr. Frampton said.

D. H. Willis, a builder, requested support in an attempt to have a short distance on Tenth street northeast, north of Rhode Island avenue, rezoned to permit him to erect a four-story apartment. After an hour's discussion, favorable action was voted. The organization joined with the Brookland and Michigan Park associations in a request to the city board of Fourteenth and Twentieth street northeast chosen as the site of a junior high school and further asked that the proposed branch public library and an elementary school be erected on adjoining sites.

264 Tubes of Poison Used as Playthings

London, March 16 (By A. P.)—Squads of police worked feverishly all night trying to recover 264 tubes of powerful poison which fell off a hospital van in London's East Side yesterday.

The tubes were picked up by small children who used them for playthings, night officers trailed the missing boy from one to another, and by noon had recovered 200. The tubes were in bright orange-colored boxes which made them very desirable toys.

Fiery Cross Burned At Governor's Home

Milwaukee, Wis., March 16 (By A. P.). A fiery cross was burned tonight at the home of Gov. Fred J. Zimmerman, in Tippecanoe, a suburb. The governor and his family are at the executive mansion in Madison and the house was unoccupied.

The cross, a wooden frame, was wrapped in burlap and it burned rapidly, lighting up the sky.

During his campaign the then candidate for governor was accused by the opposition of being a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

GOV. BYRD APPEALS FOR ASSEMBLY'S AID TO REDEEM PLEDGE

Asks Extra Session to Adopt Plans to Simplify State Government.

SEEKS NO ADDITIONAL POWER FOR EXECUTIVE

Demands Constructive Economy for Virginia; Against Bonded Indebtedness.

Richmond, Va., March 16 (By A. P.). Nothing less than the adoption of the essential recommendations of the Reed and Prentiss commissions will enable the fulfillment of the pledges made by Gov. Harry Byrd on the night of his election, he told the general assembly convened in extraordinary session here today.

"My recommendations to the general assembly of 1926," the governor said, "and the reports of the Reed and Prentiss commissions, which you ask me to consider now in these reports, is an earnest result of my efforts to redeem the pledges I made to the people. Nothing less than the adoption of the essential recommendations as made will satisfy the demands of these pledges. I will lean upon your counsel and appreciate your cooperation as we go forward as comrades to make a new Dominion that shall be worthy of the old."

He urged the legislature to act on great importance. Every single change in government proposed should receive your discriminating scrutiny and the arguments for and against weighed with the utmost care. While convinced of the correctness of the recommendations of practically all the recommendations I make I solicit your suggestions and will gladly meet you in conference whenever you desire.

For Entire State's Progress.

"We are here to serve to the best of our ability with the consciousness in our hearts of the progress of the whole of Virginia, free from all sectional prejudice and political consideration. I seek no additional power for myself or for the state government. All the recommendations made will disclose that my patronage will be substantially reduced by abolishment of positions to which appointments are now made by the governor."

"The notable report of two commissioners offer a report by business specialists to the general assembly the opportunity to increase its revenues and enable substantial savings of public funds," he said. "This saving will not be made at the cost of efficiency, but the changes proposed will promote efficiency."

A saving of time in initiation of proposed legislation, the governor said, was emphasized as one of the impelling reasons why the session was called.

"The enactment of some of the laws necessary to carry out the recommendations of the Reed commission require amendment of the Constitution," the governor explained, "and two years would be lost were we to defer action upon constitutional changes until the regular session convening next winter."

"The notable record for constructive legislation," which the assembly made at its last session, was commended by the governor, who urged the continuance of Virginia's "progressive program."

Says Funds Can Be Saved.

Discussing "Simplification and retrenchment," Gov. Byrd said, "my experience in business and in the State senate convinces me that substantial public savings can be effected by a simplification of our State and local government machinery. He briefly reviewed the history of the survey made toward this end by the New York bureau of municipal research and by the citizens' efficiency commission.

Reform of local governments must in the main await constitutional amendments, the governor asserted. The report of the bureau of municipal research on local government has not been received.

Additional recommendations to the report of the commission to suggest constitutional revision were made by the governor, who would prohibit bonds being issued by counties or districts without the approval of the voters as a referendum. He also would prohibit the appointment in recess of any person who has failed of confirmation in the general assembly.

Pointing out that a constitutional convention might have cost the State $600,000, the governor said the expenses of the Prentiss commission have run to date, to about $5,000. The appropriation made to cover its expenses was $10,000.

Cites Segregation Tax Plan.

"The fears of those who doubt the wisdom of the pending amendment to the constitution to prohibit a State tax on land and tangible personal property" should be allayed by the success of the segregation tax plan, the executive declared. "Virginia is reducing her taxes and dealing with her tax considerably and justly," he added.

"Economy must not be destructive," the governor said. "No expense should be required to work for less than fair compensation, an essential agency of the State—education or otherwise—should be starved; but the saving should be found in consolidation and simplification of government."

A gain in the financial condition of the state could be made by consolidating the state's financial resources.

Concluding his address, Gov. Byrd said that "no State can be worthy of the oil Virginia that neglects the education of her children, the care of her unfortunate, the protection of her people, or the preservation of her law." He urged the accomplishment of reforms "that will make Virginia better able to discharge these duties."

RITES FOR WILLIAM S. HAIMES

Richmond, Va., March 16 (By A. P.). The question of seating Alfred C. Smith, of Norfolk county, who was ousted from the State senate at the 1926 regular session of the Virginia general assembly and who had since been reelected, was referred to the Senate privileges and elections committee today when strong opposition to him developed after he had presented his credentials.

The action was taken on motion of Senator Holman, who of Rosedale, and followed a lively discussion that delayed for more than half an hour the joint session of the senate and the

Traffic-Halting Throng Attends Burglar Search

Headquarters detectives and police of the First precinct who answered a call for help at 1111 F street northwest shortly before 11 o'clock last night were prepared to tackle burglars who were supposed to be looting the two stores at that address, but they were entirely inadequate to cope with the crowd of more than 1,000 curious persons who gathered, looking on.

As soon as the precinct and headquarters cars pulled up to the curb in front of the Eshet & Bachar Fur Shop and the Lerner Shop, at 1111 F street, the crowd began to gather. Nearby theaters were letting out and men and women, young and old, quickly blocked traffic.

Instead of capturing robbers in the presence of the throng the police found only a man and woman taking stock in the Lerner Shop.

Protests from the Musicians Protective Union resulted in cancellation of concerts by the Marine, Army and Navy bands at the Industrial exposition of the Washington Chamber of Commerce in the Washington auditorium. It was learned last night. The Army band played the opening night. The union contend that music by service bands for any function other than those directed or supervised by the government is unfair competition.

As the exposition went into the first day of its second half it saw the largest attendance since its opening. Approximately 8,000 people had attended the exposition in the morning until they closed at night.

The show also took on color and a spirit of enthusiasm as it began its last stretch. An Indian, dressed in the blancket, told the story of old Romulus, about two girls, dressed as soldiers, drew in their wake a mob of urchins.

Last night's performance was broadcast through station WMAL. The stage had been transformed into a broadcasting studio.

Dorsey W. Hyde, Jr., secretary of the chamber, over the radio urged a "conservative industrial development" of Washington which would be compatible with the needs of the city.

Washington is prosperous, but surely too many boys and girls after finishing school have to go elsewhere to seek employment, he stated, adding that the future of Washington is in the hands of the men and women of the city.

Emile Berliner, inventor, also gave a short address in which he expressed his surprise at the many industries of Washington which the exposition brought before the people. Martin A. Leese, president of the chamber, also spoke.

Capt. John Thomas Tompkins, commander of the submarine division of the battle fleet, and former assistant chief of the bureau of engineering, Navy Department, died Tuesday evening following an operation performed at the Naval Hospital, Naval General Hospital, Washington, D. C.

He was born in Minden, La., in 1870, was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1890, attained the rank of captain in 1917, and was assigned to the bureau of naval operations where he remained until 1920, serving as chief of the bureau of engineering and in 1924, was assigned as aid for navy yards to the Secretary of the Navy. In 1925, he assumed his last command.

Capt. Tompkins was awarded the Cross of Honor and the Navy Cross.

His wife, Mrs. Katherine Hancock Tompkins, of Philadelphia, survives.

SISTERS' WISH TO DIE TOGETHER GRANTED

Misses Anna and Stacia Toole Inseparable During 50 Years in City.

Inseparable companions throughout the 50 years they lived in Washington, to which they came from Ireland when young women, two sisters, Misses Anna and Stacia Toole, will be buried side by side in Mount Olivet cemetery tomorrow morning, following joint funeral services in St. Peter's Catholic church at 10 o'clock.

Both died of heart disease following their wish that they should die together, but until the final stages of their illness they appeared confident of recovery.

Miss Anna was 76 years old, and had been ill nine days. Miss Stacia, 68, had been ill thirteen days.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock Saturday morning at St. Peter's Catholic church.

MELLON CONDEMN'S EFFORT TO REOPEN DEBT SETTLEMENTS

Secretary Declares the Action
Would Be Step Backward, Causing Discord.

CRITICIZES FACULTIES FOR MAKING PROPOSALS

Writes Hibben That Suggestion Strengthens Foreign Opposition to Ratification.

(By the Associated Press.)

A recognition of foreign debt settlements, in Senator Mellon's opinion would be a step backward "calculated to produce discord and confusion rather than contribute to the economic stability and orderly betterment of our prosperity."

His view was set forth in a letter to President Hibben, of Princeton university, made public yesterday at the Treasury Department without comment. It was in reply to the suggestion of members of the Princeton and Columbia university faculties for a revision of the foreign debt settlement which was considered at the Treasury as settling definitely the question of the administration's attitude toward any deviation from its debt-funding policy.

Asserting that the nation is hardly likely to receive any advantage in respect of other nations by sacrificing its own just claims, Mr. Mellon declared that cancellation of debts owed the United States would not of itself change the dislike with which the educators declared Europeans look upon this country.

Faculty Action Criticized.

With reference to the unratified French debt settlement, the Secretary said that "it would not have been amiss for you and your associates to have taken into consideration that the inevitable effect of such a pronouncement would be to encourage and strengthen the opposition in foreign countries to such ratification."

Such encouragement, he added, would be equivalent to a vote in favor of the approval of the Mellon-Bengough debt-funding accord by the American House of Representatives, in which debate "indicated that an overwhelming majority of the representatives were opposed to more lenient terms."

Declaring that the advances to foreign countries were beyond dispute loans and not contributions to allies,

Nevada Gamblers
Object to License

Special to The Washington Post.
Carson City, Nev., March 16.—Just delivered free public advice to the governor, senate and State legislature of Nevada. They killed the license gambling bill here today. The gambling element killed it. They voted against paying a license fee. With all other States gambling free there was no reason they should pay a license fee.

LEOPOLD CLEARED IN STORY OF PLOT FOR A JAIL BREAK

Confession of Former Convict
Is Term'd "Bunk," Official Statement Issued.

GIRLS SMUGGLED SAWS
AND PISTOLS, MAN SAYS

One of Recaptured Mexicans
Says One in Chicago and One in Joliet Aided.

Joliet, Ill., March 16 (By A. P.)—An investigation today of rumors and confessions of convicts to link Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., with two prison deliveries and plans for the wholesale poisoning of penitentiary guards as an incident of a third colossal prison break, brought an official statement of exonerations.

At the same time, Hjalmar Rehn, State's attorney, announced that the facts of the doings of last Saturday in which three Mexicans under death sentence broke out would be laid before the county grand jury Monday.

The day brought no positive development in the search for Bernardo Roa, the only of the prison-breakers to remain at large. Twenty Mexicans rounded up in Chicago were freed in police court.

The three Mexicans and four Americans killed Peter Klein, deputy warden, in the prison's solitary confinement at a time when the Mexicans under death sentence were being held in separate cells.

Prosecutor Rehn immediately turned the matter over to the grand jury, which he said he was convinced Leopold was involved in either plan.

Rehn pointed out that while the Americans bought supplies in this country on credit, the United States bought supplies and services from France and the British empire "by hundreds of millions" and paid cash.

Former Convict Confesses.

"Here is the fundamental reason which explains why we ended the war with everyone owing us and our owing no one," continued Mr. Mellon.

We are now urged to cancel these debts because it is alleged that they were incurred in a common cause, but neither abroad nor in this country has it been suggested that if this is to be done we are to be reimbursed the dollars actually expended by us in France and Great Britain so that the goods and services they sold us might constitute their contribution to the common cause.

Secretary Mellon challenged the accuracy of statements that the terms of the debt settlements impose a tremendous tax burden on the next two generations of friendly countries. The demand, he said, was that the two flights of a fund of $8,000.

Warden Green scoffed at such an idea. He said that since Leopold was received to serve a life sentence he had not had more than $2 at one time. The prison warden was an old story, he said.

Roberto Torres, one of the three Mexicans who escaped, confessed to night that the saws and guns which enabled them to escape were smuggled to them by two Mexican girls, Gallardo, sweetheart of Roa, who lives in Chicago, and Attilano Alessio, who brought them this implement.

The Gallardo girl, he told Chicago authorities, brought saws in three pieces and then reassembled them. Two weeks later smuggled two pistols to them in her clothing. When they decided they would need another saw, she said Roa wrote the girl a letter and she enlisted the aid of the Alessio girl who brought them this implement.

That morning, he said, Torres and the Alessio girl, who had been separated by the prison authorities, met again and the Alessio girl brought him a pistol.

Both Torres and the Alessio girl were captured and returned to the prison.

Both were sentenced to life imprisonment.

COOLIDGE CHANCES DIMMED BY DAWES, EDWARDS ASSERTS

Will Keep President From the Nomination on First Ballot, Says Senator.

DECLARATES THAT PEOPLE OPPOSE "THIRD TERM"

Mentions Smith as One Who Appeals to Farmer as Well as City Voters.

By NORMAN W. BAXTER.
Vice President Charles G. Dawes, who was named on Tuesday by Senator Gilmor D. Fess, of Ohio, as the inheritor of the Coolidge mantle if the President decided not to be a candidate, was pictured yesterday by Senator Frank E. Edwards, of New Jersey, as the man whose strength in the next Republican convention will be sufficient to keep President Coolidge from getting the nomination on the first

Senator Edwards, Democratic wet, naturally expressed considerable disagreement with the views of his colleague from Ohio. His conclusion was that the chief executive would not be a candidate. He also said that Senator Fess' statement was not accurate in that Republicans could not win again unless the President was willing to defy third-term tradition and that prosperity was a "well-propagandized myth."

Strangely enough, Senator Edwards was not a strong advocate of the Democratic candidate. He mentioned the appeal which Gov. Al Smith of New York would make to the farmers as an influence that would be weighed by the Republcan oil guard in abandoning the President, but grew almost enthusiastic in his comment upon the Vice President.

Dawes' Popularity Emphasized.

Senator Edwards stamped Dawes as the most popular man in the Senate and one who had taken every advantage of the opportunity afforded him for successful political maneuvering. In the opinion of the New Jersey senator, the administration supporters are deeply concerned over the ascendancy of "Disregarding the right or wrong of a White House occupant seeking a third term," said Senator Edwards, "the American people can confidently be relied upon to look with disfavor upon any effort of Mr. Coolidge to be re-elected President."

"For Senator Fess, of Ohio, to say that 'President Coolidge will have to run again' is an admission on the part of one of the recognized spokesmen of the Republcan party that the Vice O. P. can not repeat the 1924 triumph unless its present leader is made to defy a well founded constitutional tradition."

"Although Mr. Coolidge has been elected President only once, his actions have been so far-reaching in the case of the death of the latter is recognized by all America as being equivalent to a complete term in office."

Declared Farmers Oppose Coolidge.

"President Coolidge is not the strong, silent, impregnable candidate that he was in 1924, although a well propagandized prosperity myth has clung to him ever since. The time of no prosperity American agriculture owes the enormous sum of $12,000,000,000. The American farmer and those directly associated with him in his endeavors to gain an honest living consider him a most hard-hearted member of our population. How many of this class, which is overwhelmingly Republcan, were willing to instruct their delegates in the 1928 convention for Mr. Coolidge? The grand old party is not going to name a candidate who will be a target for the poisoned arrows of one-third of our population."

"And with the shadow of Al Smith, who speaks the language of the farmer as well as the man in the middle, and large Eastern interests, beclouding the political skies, waricks of stand-pat and reaction are going to sound the cost of Coolidgeism well in advance of 1928."

Dawes' Prestige Declared Increased.

"Then there are the admitted and confessed White House aspirations of cooler heads in the party. The prestige during the last session of the Congress was increased a hundred fold. To my mind the Vice President was the most popular man who sat in the United States Senate during the last session. He is a cool, clear-thinking fellow, who remains silent not because of a Vermont marble inhibition, but because the very nature of the office does not easily lend itself to loquacity. But the most fertile post in America is deep, dark, thick, and successful political maneuvering. And Mr. Dawes has taken every advantage of the fertile fields."

"The Coolidge wing of the Republcan party is deeply concerned over the Vice President's ascendancy and my prediction is that the Dawes boom will reach such menacing proportions in the South, middle and far West before June of next year, that Mr. Coolidge will enter into the convention with more votes than can nominate him on the first ballot."

"And if my prediction is true, and Mr. Coolidge does not receive the nomination on the first ballot, the chances are greater than ever that the White House will have diminished 10 per cent. in my opinion President Coolidge will not be a candidate for renomination."

VICTORIES FOR LIBERALS IN NICARAGUA CLAIMED

Diaz Aviators, However, Say
Sacasa Forces Have Fired
From Tierra Azul.

TREATY PROPOSAL HERE

Mangana, Nicaragua, March 16 (By A. P.)—Aviators of the conservative army returning to Mangana from the front said today that in an aerial attack they aided the conservatives forces under Gen. Noguera in carrying out successfully an operation against the Tierra Azul, in which the liberals were seen fleeing. The air men were unable to give any details with regard to casualties.

The conservatives remained yesterday at Minavera, to which place they retreated from the Mud Muy after previous night after their decision to defeat and their ammunition became exhausted in an 8-hour fight with the liberals. The conservatives left 80 dead on the field.

Scored seven wounded in the fighting, arriving at Matagalpa, in Mexico City, March 16 (By A. P.)—Pedro J. Zepeda, the liberal Nicaraguan government's Minister, quoting from message received from Liberal President Sacasa, says the Sacasa forces are still within sight of the troops of Conservative President Diaz.

The message said Gen. Moncada had defeated the conservatives between Boaco and Tepeque and that Gen. Sandoval had won a victory over the Diaz troops at Tierra Azul. The message said that 200 conservatives at Tepeque have revolted and now are supporting Sacasa.

Text of Proposed Treaty With Nicaragua Received

The text of the proposed Nicaraguan treaty involving a protectorate over the Latin-American country by the United States was received by the State Department yesterday.

Secretary of State Kellogg made known he would give the full text careful study, although he made it clear he did not favor it on the face of sum up previously telegraphed to him.

President Coolidge recently made known that he did not favor the proposed treaty. The proposal contemplates:

1. Financial and economic rehabilitation of Nicaragua through the aid of an American financial mission and an American receiver general of customs.

2. Preservation of peace throughout the country by use of American forces.

3. An American military mission to establish a constabulary force and train it for ten years.

"Our treaty with Mexico provides for arbitration." President Roosevelt referred to The Hague tribunal as an important controversy with Mexico.

"We believe similar procedure now will be universally applauded."

The petition was presented by George L. Lewis, New York treasurer of the Foreign Police association; Member of the National League of Women Voters; the Y. W. C. A., the Federal Council of Churches, the National Women's Trade Union League, the American Association of University Women, the National Council of Jewish Women and the W. C. T. U. were signers of the petition.

Examinations for 2,500 Jobs Likely to Be Followed by Oral Tests.

Further plans for placement of the Bureau of prohibition in the civil service were announced yesterday by the United States civil service commission.

At the time of the passage of the act of March 3, it was explained, 4,400 of the 3,900 employees of the prohibition service already were in the classified service, they consisting mainly of employees engaged in enforcement of the anti-smoking act and office workers.

Other civil service commissioners officials yesterday said examinations for the 2,500 newly-classified positions will include about 1,500 prohibition agents, 300 inspectors, 150 alcohol and brewery inspectors, 100 investigators, 100 telephone operators, 100 typists, 100 stenographers and 50 deputy administrators. Explaining that the basic examination in all probability will be supplemented by an oral test, they said, in order to give this it will be necessary to send investigators to interview applicants in various parts of the country.

PENNINGTON SLATED FOR NEW DRY OFFICE

Administrator, at Pittsburgh, Is Said to Meet Secretary Mellon's Views.

J. D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for the Pittsburgh district, will be appointed by Secretary Mellon to the post of commissioner of prohibition. It was indicated yesterday at the Treasury Department.

Assistant Secretary Andrews, charged with prohibition enforcement, has endorsed Mr. Pennington and Secretary Mellon is understood to approve of him.

Mr. Pennington is a former naval officer and his administrative work in Pittsburgh has been approved by business interests consuming industrial alcohol. The Antisaloon league forces want Roy A. Haynes appointed.

Herbert H. White, former army officer and recently appointed protection administrator for the District of Maryland enforcement arm, is regarded as the probable successor to Mr. Pennington if the latter is promoted.

Mr. Haynes was offered one of the two new posts of commissioners and administrative work of the enforcement machinery here, is said to be likely to get the other.

TROUBLE IN MEXICO MAGNIFIED, ASSERTS SECRETARY KELLOGG

SINCLAIR IS FOUND GUILTY OF CONTEMPT OF SENATE

of either branch of Congress to compel answers to questions and as the constitutionality of section 102 is admitted uncertain in that regard, the present Sinclair contempt case is likely to become a classic for future guidance when it is ultimately passed upon by the highest tribunal. If it goes there the Court of Appeals, the Supreme Court, will decide in the Mal Daugherty case stated that committees of Congress can compel attendance of witnesses but also stated that witnesses have the right to refuse to answer questions under certain conditions.

The case against Sinclair was based on the fact that he appeared before the Senate committee on public lands and surveys on March 22, 1924, and declined to answer any of 10 questions put to him, refusing to do so because he had already appeared on five different occasions and given all facts desired and that the matter which the committee sought to inquire about had already been submitted to the jurisdiction of the courts.

Justice Hitz asked the jury if it goes there the Court of Appeals will rule that the defendant is liable for contempt.

The above-mentioned points were stressed in Justice Hitz' first charge to the jury, read when court convened at 1:30 p.m.

Reasons Not to Be Considered.

"The reasons that prompted him are not to be considered by you," he added. "You're not concerned in the least with the reasons that may have animated Mr. Sinclair in refusing to answer, if he did refuse."

Sinclair was not being charged with any felony, the judge added, but merely with disobedience to a lawful order.

"It's perfectly possible for a man to follow the advice of learned counsel and land in jail, just as it's possible for a man to follow the advice of learned physician and die in a cemetery," Justice Hitz added.

Justice Hitz added that no prejudice or sympathy should sway the jury. The fact that Sinclair was president of an oil company and that the price of gasoline was high should likewise have no weight, he added jokingly.

Sixty-four men were called up during the morning session. Peyton Gordon opened for the government and George P. Hoover made the opening address to the jury for the defense.

"You hold the scales of justice between the government and the one person who was here, Mr. Sinclair," said the judge.

Justice Hitz adjourned the court to take up the case of a man to be tried for a second offense.

The solution, it was inferred, may be through private negotiation between American owners and the Mexican government.

While the court was waiting Justice Hitz announced that two requests had come from jurors asking that telephone messages be transmitted for them.

"One message asks 'Johnnie expect me when you see me.' The other was to a friend stating, 'Cannot keep that appointment tonight.' After reading the messages Justice Hitz adjourned the court subject to be taken as by this time the court had had a speedy trial.

Justice Hitz added that no prejudice could be expected.

The case was given to the jury at 1:50 o'clock; and after the court's instructions it was expected that the verdict might be a mere formality, as Justice Hitz told the jurors that the only question they had to decide was whether Sinclair was summoned.

The committee did not order him to answer any of the questions. Hoover continued, contending that only individual senators asked questions and that the committee had no power to refuse to answer. All the issues in the case were of whether the committee had the right to ask the questions, whether the committee directed him to answer, or whether he was asked the questions and whether he refused to answer.

The court was adjourned until 2:30 p.m. when the jury was called back to answer the questions.

But even with these restrictions, George P. Hoover and Martin W. Littleton, of defense, shrewdly argued that the jury was not to be swayed by the instructions of the committee.

"It's a simple question," he continued. "Is it a mere formality, or is it a question of whether he was summoned?"

Hoover was asked if he had been compelled to appear on March 22.

"He was not," he replied. "The committee directed him to appear on March 22."

LETTER, DATED 1804, PRESENTED IN FIGHT ON DRY AMENDMENT

Gouverneur Morris' View Said to Hold Adoption by Congress Invalid.

SUPREME COURT HOLDS QUORUM WAS INTENDED

Two-Thirds of All Members Required, Is the Opinion Offered at Albany.

Albany, N. Y., March 16 (By A. P.)—Constitutionality of the prohibition amendment was argued by petitioners in the Supreme Court today on the basis of a 123-year-old letter contained in a monthly volume published 95 years ago.

If this volume, little known and apparently never before discovered by the opponents of prohibition, had been in the possession of the United States Supreme Court when that body upheld the eighteenth amendment, the petitioner asserted in effect, the court probably would have ruled against the amendment and prohibition would have died at birth.

As a result of its own impulsion to take direct action in Washington toward reversal of the august Federal body's decision, based though it might be on misapprehension and lack of information, the petitioner yet expressed hope that something might be done by the State government, if investigation showed a justification for action.

The petitioner was Eliot Tuckerman, a New York lawyer and a former member of the State legislature, and the book which he had in his possession was "The Life of Gouverneur Morris," by Jared Sparks.

The letter which Tuckerman asserted showed the Supreme court to have acted in upholding the prohibition amendment in contradiction to the intent of the drafters of the constitution was written in 1804 by Morris to Uriah Tracy, then a United States senator.

Tuckerman also quoted from the first inaugural address of George Washington to strengthen his contention that the Supreme court did not correctly interpret the intentions of the men who framed the Constitution in the prohibition ruling. Washington differentiated sharply between the ordinary "sovereign" substance of the Constitution and "occasional powers" including amendments; in the use of which he expresses confidence that especial care will be taken.

The petition was referred to committee.

The whole question of the constitutionality of the eighteenth amendment, Tuckerman said, depended on the meaning of one short and ambiguous phrase in the fifth article of the Constitution, the article which deals with the manner in which amendments may be proposed to be made by Congress.

Right of Quorum Is Issue.

This article reads that Congress shall propose amendments "whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary."

The late Speaker Reed ruled in 1898 that this should be interpreted to mean two-thirds of a quorum such as is necessary for the transaction of ordinary business, one-half of the members voting on each side. The interpretation of the Supreme court accepted when the first prohibition case under the eighteenth amendment came before it, and it since has remained the accepted interpretation.

In his letter, Gouverneur Morris to Senator Tracy, however, reads as follows: "The idea that two-thirds of the whole number of senators and of the whole number of representatives are required by the Constitution to propose an amendment, is certainly correct."

The eighteenth amendment, Tuckerman reminded the State legislature, was proposed by two-thirds of a quorum of both houses, but not by two-thirds of the membership, and so according to Morris' interpretation of the Fifth article, was not constitutional.

Other letters in the Sparks book, signed by Morris himself and by James Madison, were cited to prove that Morris was the actual draftsman of the Constitution, and therefore there could be no superior authority on its intent.

(By the Associated Press.)

Such a contention, while it will not go through long practice with its methods predicted last night that an extraordinary showing would be required before the court would reopen the prohibition controversy.

Newly discovered evidence, they pointed out, is always considered as grounds for a court to review its action, but in their judgment the questions presented at Albany are not sufficiently meritorious to bring another decision on the constitutionality of the eighteenth amendment.

Impressed with the court's oft-repeated pronouncement that the amendment represented the sentiment of the people and the earnest support which the court has given to its enforcement, the court held that something more than a technical construction given the Constitution by its framers, would be required to reopen the matter.

Discussing methods of bringing the question again before the court, the attorney general was met with in all probability it would have to come in a petition asking permission to raise the issue, thus leaving the matter of granting the permission entirely to the discretion of the court.

Under the Constitution New York State could itself come into the court as a litigant in certain appellate proceedings, it can not seek the jurisdiction of the court in such a case as is involved in testing the prohibition amendment, without, it is declared, obtaining the consent of the court.

Durkin's Wife Gets Divorce.

Bloomington, Ill., March 16 (By A. P.)—Irma Sullivan Durkin, recently Cornell, Ill., girl and wife of Martin Durkin, 26, a grain dealer, have filed for divorce in the Illinois court.

The decree gave her the right to assume her maiden name. Durkin is serving a prison term for the murder of a Federal officer.

Air Is Supplied to Prisoner
With Blacksmith's Bellows;
Taken Out Unhurt.

Stephens Home, Chatham county, N. C., March 16 (By A. P.)—Jeff Ashworth, 20-year-old farmer, tonight was recovering here from the exposure and excitement of having been buried alive for thirteen hours in an old well.

Ashworth, 5 feet 7 inches, weighing 180 pounds, dull shooting pains of which he complained, he had apparently suffered little physical injury. Physicians said he needed absolute rest, and probably could be removed to his own home tomorrow.

Ashworth made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"It must have been a miracle, but now I want to sleep. There was plenty of room in the well, but the water was very cold, but falling debris and lack of air caused me much discomfort. I breathed deep for air, deeper, deeper, but the air all day and night got thinner and thinner. At first I was cool, but later I began to fear for my rescue, and reckon this was due partly to a flash of what had occurred to Floyd Collins in Kentucky, and actually, the thin air. The doctors are here."

"Then I felt awfully much alone. I thought how deep down I was. But back of my mind was the thought that I had friends working above."

Nicholas' young wife told of the work of digging "my Jeff" out and asserted that "Jeff has cleaned out his last well."

"It was shortly before 11 o'clock yesterday morning that Jeff was lowered into the well," she said. "It was about one-half hour past 5 o'clock when about 40 feet down rock started falling. Jeff yelled up to pull him up but before the men at the windlass could reverse the whole walls toppled in. It sounded like thunder. I just knew Jeff had been killed."

"I called to him but he didn't answer. A new rope tackle was rigged up and the men started bringing out the rocks, one by one, but there wasn't enough help. They kept yelling to Jeff but still he didn't answer. There was a terrible explosion."

One of the boys grabbed a truck and went after help. Soon the whole neighborhood came. There must have been 500 people there. They worked like dogs.

"Four men were in the hole lifting out rocks. Six above worked the windlass. The rock pile on top began to grow and finally one of the men in the pit said he heard Jeff. Everybody crowded about the mouth of the hole. 'We could hear Jeff's voice, but it was mighty weak. Help, I am burning up,' we finally heard him say.

Give Air With Bellows.

"Somebody said he needed air. They rushed around and found an old blacksmith's bellows. Somebody found some rubber hose. We rigged it up and stuck the end down through the rocks and pumped and but it didn't look like any air was getting through."

"Help, I am burning up. All day we worked. The Stephens had us food and we kept on working. Lamps and lanterns lit up and we kept on working."

"I was called to the car about night, said he was still 'burning up.' He cried for water and we worked hard, but it was slow work. Then we uncovered his head. He was bloody, dirty and sweaty. We gave him a drink and wrapped him up in a wet blanket. Soon after 11 o'clock we drew him out."

Hundreds of curious seekers took night had battled their way over the rocky 10-mile trail from Fuquay Springs and had returned. Oscar Stephens, for whom Ashworth was working, had been taken to Fuquay Springs and called the doctor to his home. He said the ancient well would be filled up immediately.

WOMEN FIGHT TO SEE ROYAL RUSSIAN GEMS

Nuptial Crown of Catherine
the Great Among Jewels
Sold at London.

London, March 16 (By A. P.)—Women fought for admission to Christie's showrooms today to attend an auction of a collection of royal Russian jewels, including the famous nuptial crown of Catherine the Great, which brought a total of $26,000.

The nuptial crown, as it is described to distinguish it from the great imperial coronation crown, was sold early to a Paris firm for $6,100. It has double rows of fine brilliants set in borders of smaller stones and surmounted by a cross of six large brilliant diamonds.

Novelty time pendants, bracelets, gold goblets and a jewel-inlaid court sword of Paul I—all jewels worn by the rulers and nobility of imperial Russia—brought recently by an English syndicate, were sold in 124 lots.

The girl smiled faintly and then shook hands with each of the jurors. As she left the courtroom she began to sob.

Attorneys contend that the girl was suffering from "psychic epilepsy" and that she was in a seizure when she called Nafus from a pool hall and shot him.

The girl testified she could not recall having killed Nafus.

Cafe Where Artists Gather Is Bombed

San Francisco, March 16 (By A. P.)—The picturesque Cafe Mimi Imperator, gathering place of San Francisco artists, was damaged early today by a bomb which had been planted in a window of the place. The explosion caused wide destruction, where they were held many romantic and tragic associations, were taken from a secret underground strongroom, where they had been guarded night and day, only a few minutes before the sale.

Homes in the vicinity of the cafe and windows in a score of houses were shattered by the blast.

WOMEN SAVED BY DIVER WHEN TRAPPED IN AUTO

Policeman at Atlantic City
Swims Out, Breaks Glass and Rescues Them

HE GOES TO A HOSPITAL

Atlantic City, N. J., March 16 (By A. P.)—Trapped in their closed automobile, which they inadvertently had driven over an embankment into the waters of the Thorofore, two Philadelphia women were saved from drowning early today by a policeman who swam inside the car to rescue them.

The two women, Mrs. Charles Doonin, wife of the former manager of the Philadelphia National baseball club and Mrs. A. D. Allen, were revived in a nearby home and later taken to Mrs. Doonin's home in a taxicab. The policeman, William Coleman, was taken to a hospital.

Mrs. Doonin had been driving the car and evidently becoming confused as to the location of the Albany avenue pontoon bridge, drove to the right over the embankment and into the water.

The machine was lying in nine feet of water, and Coleman, breaking a window, swam inside. He grasped Mrs. Doonin and swam with her to the shore. He then returned and found Mrs. Allen in the automobile, caught with her head under water. One leg had been caught under the steering wheel and Coleman was unable to extricate her. Others, however, had been attracted to the scene and Coleman managed to keep Mrs. Allen's head above water until firemen could lower a ladder and rescue her.

THE SLUSH FUND COMMITTEE.

Senator Reed, of Missouri, has announced that he has called his slush fund committee to meet in this city Saturday, for the purpose of renewing the inquiry into the Pennsylvania primary and election, and especially to impound and begin counting the ballots cast in certain counties.

The average citizen can not understand how the Reed committee has authority to act, after Senator Reed failed to secure the passage of the resolution extending the life and powers of the committee. Why did he press that resolution, even to the point of defeating necessary legislation, if his committee would have remained in existence anyhow?

The doubt as to the authority of the Reed committee is so strong that Senator Keyes, chairman of the committee in charge of the Senate's contingent fund, refused to sign a voucher to cover the expenses of the sergeant-at-arms in connection with the impounding of ballot boxes as directed by Senator Reed.

It is expected that if the committee should order the opening of ballot boxes already on hand an application will be made for a writ of injunction on the ground that the committee has no authority to act.

Until the Reed committee's lawful existence and authority are established by law or by the Senate, its proceedings will be questioned and its prestige will be under eclipse. The sensational filibuster in the Senate made the public thoroughly aware of the fact that Senator Reed was trying to have the life of his committee extended. An attempt now to function, regardless of the defeat of the resolution, would raise universal doubt as to the validity of any action which the committee might take.

IN SELF-DEFENSE.

Few there will be to criticize the verdict of the coroner's jury which yesterday exonerated Mrs. Anna Susan Edwards for the killing of her drunken husband, who was threatening to kill her with a hammer.

According to the account of the affair given to the jury by the 11-year-old son of the couple, the man, crazed with liquor, broke down the door of the bedroom in which the mother and her three children were locked. The mother, who had first armed herself with a pistol, endeavored to escape from the infuriated brute, who had announced his purpose to kill his children as well as his wife. He pursued her and struck her with the hammer, and she shot and killed him.

If there ever was a homicide that was justified, it was in the case of Anna Susan Edwards. The coroner's jury which so promptly rendered justice in freeing the woman of the charge of murder, which the police had placed against her, acted merely as any jury would have done.

THE CORN-BORER WAR.

The first list of purchases of implements and machinery in the war against the corn-borer reads like the catalogue of an agricultural implement dealer combined with an automobile show. The Department of Agriculture has just announced that contracts have been made with various makers of machinery, agricultural implements and tractors, and automobiles.

Of the $1,520,584.04 involved in these contracts $102,202 goes to the International Harvester Co. for $60 stubble beaters. Deere & Co., of Moline, Ill., are to supply 440 tractors at a cost of $281,922, and the International Harvester Co. a like number for $283,091.

Then comes the contract with the Federal Motor Truck Co., of Detroit, with an order for 64 "oil-burning apparatus" for which that company is to receive $482,014. This machine must be designed for the aristocrats of the borer family, as the Secretary has ordered 200 "burning carriages" from the Cleveland Iron Works Co., for which he will have to pay only $22,000.

Seventy-five Willys-Overland coupes will be used by the officers in command of the campaign, and for these the department gets a rate of $550.50 each. The Donohoe Motor Co., of Washington, and the Ford Motor Co. are the only local concerns which get a worthwhile part of the distribution. The former will furnish 150 half-ton steel box body trucks for $62,016 and 44 half-ton canopy top trucks for $20,164.26, and the Ford company 364 light tractors for $173,577.96.

Other supplies for which contracts have been made include lumber, staples, tacks, copper cloth, screening, skids and boxes, ropes and electric drills.

The $10,000,000 which Congress approved will be used in cooperation with those States that aid the drive financially. Already New York, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio have enacted the necessary legislation. It is in those States that the borer has done the most damage. The drive is being made with the prime purpose of preventing the movement of the pest into the corn belt.

The department will try to destroy, either by burning or burying deeply, every piece of corn stubble, every coracob, and every cornstalk in the infected district which may harbor the eggs or larvae of the insects, and while the local laws make it imperative for the farmers to aid the work in every way, the department will compensate those who "work overtime" at a stipulated rate per acre.

The task is herculean, but the officials of the Department of Agriculture are going at it with a firm determination to beat the borer before he gets ready to extend his operations.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

For a man who has been so long dead and about the facts of whose life so much uncertainty exists, St. Patrick occupies a great place in the world today. Religious ceremonies and social functions are being held in his honor on this his festival not only in Dublin, the chief city of the country he evangelized, and in Armagh, where he established his primatial see, but also in many of the capitals of the principal nations of the world—in Washington, in London, in Paris, in Madrid and in Vienna as well as in Canada, Newfoundland, South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand, and in many outposts of Christianity in the Far East.

It is of singular significance that the name of Patrick has just been placed for the first time in the calendar of the Church of England at the very moment when other saints of long standing—St. Helen, St. Valentine, St. Crispin, to name no others—are being struck off. This is a signal recognition of the important place he holds in the British Isles. Catholics and Protestants alike claim him as the patron and founder of their respective churches in Ireland. In Dublin today eulogies are being pronounced on him, in the Irish language, both in the Catholic pro-cathedral and in the Protestant cathedral which takes its name from the saint himself.

It is not known with certainty when or where Patrick was born, but there is a considerable amount of agreement that his death took place at Saul, Downpatrick, Ireland, late in the fifth century. There is fair historical ground for believing that, after having been in his youth a slave in Ireland for six years, during which time he mastered the Irish tongue, and after escaping from those who held him in thrall, he prepared himself for the priesthood with the idea of returning to convert the Irish nation to Christianity. He served his apprenticeship as a missionary under St. Germain of Auxerre, and accompanied the latter on his celebrated "Invasion" of Britain, undertaken in order to combat the erroneous teachings of Pelagius. Patrick was thus no novice when he received from Pope Celestine I the commission of preaching the gospel to the Irish race.

In some respects, this task was far from easy, for the Druids were up in arms against him, as they saw their spiritual supremacy and the prestige that went with it threatened by the exponent of the new doctrine, and on many occasions violence was used against him and his companions, and they were occasionally in danger even of death. In other respects, however, it was not so difficult, for the Irish of the fifth century were a highly civilized and well educated people, eager for knowledge, inquisitive about new things, and of a logical turn of mind that made them willing to accept conclusive argument even when it conflicted with their preconceived ideas. To such a people the plucking of a shamrock from the sward, as was done by Patrick at Tara, in presence of the Ard-Righ or High King and his chieftains, in order to give them a rough idea of what he meant when he spoke of the mystery of the Trinity, was a telling illustration. It was, indeed, a master stroke of genius or inspiration, and from that distant Easter day of 433 down to the present time the shamrock has always been the symbol of Patrick and of Erin, and assuredly it commences an important event in the history of mankind.

Patrick was a great organizer. He founded churches in every province of Ireland and appointed priests and consecrated bishops to carry on his work both during his lifetime and especially after he should have passed away. Like many another good bishop, he was not much of a scholar, and yet he succeeded in laying the foundation of that intensive study combined with sanctity that made Ireland known for several centuries as the "Light of the West," the island of holy and learned men. From Ireland, too, went forth to the ends of the earth missionaries to proclaim and spread the doctrine which Patrick taught, and this consideration helps to explain the almost universal esteem and reverence in which he is held.

Despite the fact that Patrick himself was a man of great austerity of life, devoted to penance and prayer in an extraordinary degree, his feast has always been a joyous one, associated with innocent mirth and amusement. In non-prohibition countries the practice is still kept up of "drowning the shamrock," and in every land where his name is held in honor the celebration takes the form of dinner dance, music, song and parade.

Irishmen have good reason to be proud of their national apostle, whose memory, after more than fourteen centuries, is still so green and who commands such widespread honor and veneration.

EVADING THE CORPORATION TAX.

It is reported that the newly created congressional joint committee selected to inform Congress as to the administration of the 1926 revenue law has learned that the Treasury loses large sums of money every year by reason of the practice of many corporations in refusing to distribute all earnings in dividends, by setting apart various sums to surplus or stock dividends. It is charged that this is done to evade the payment of income tax, the Supreme Court having decided that a stock dividend is not subject to a federal income tax.

The revenue law of 1926 (section 220) provides that if any corporation is formed for the purpose of evading income taxes by permitting its gains and profits to accumulate instead of being divided or distributed, there shall be levied and collected a tax equal to 50 per cent of the amount involved, in addition to the regular income tax.

While the joint committee is unwilling to take the word of those who appear to be guided more by prejudice and enthusiasm than by facts, nevertheless it is disposed to investigate and ascertain the truth. It is to be presumed that the Treasury Department has been and is now watchful and persistent; nevertheless the purpose of the joint committee is to quit spreading these rumors.

Senator King announces that he will not visit Haiti. As Haiti had already made the same announcement, that makes it unanimous.

Trade Commission to give the Senate information as to the number of corporations making stock dividends in 1926, and their names, and the amount of such stock issued. The trade commission replied that it did not have full information, and that it might be obtained from the Treasury Department, if there was time before the end of the session.

It is not known whether the Treasury has this complete information for the use of the joint congressional committee. However, it will be furnished without doubt. It is anticipated that then the committee can estimate how much income tax is lost by reason of a refusal of some corporations to distribute earnings as dividends.

In 1924 the Senate made a request of the Treasury Department for information as to corporation earnings, cash dividends, stock dividends and undivided surplus at the close of the fiscal year 1923 and up to January 7, 1924.

The reply showed that the net taxable income of all corporations was $4,468,660,000;

cash dividends $2,763,068,000, stock dividends

$2,547,627,000, and surplus and undivided profits $15,110,440,000.

For the fiscal year 1924 corporations reported cash dividends $4,338,822,000, stock

dividends $510,525,000, income tax paid $881,

549,000. In 1925 corporations paid an income tax amounting to $916,232,697, and in 1926 an income tax amounting to $1,094,979,000.

The decision of the Supreme Court held that stock dividends "made lawfully and in good faith" were not subject to income tax. Can

Congress, in the face of this decision, amend the revenue act so as to impose an income tax on earnings set aside to surplus or stock dividends? Must look o' good faith be proved?

THE GASOLINE TAX.

Chairman Zihlman, of the House District committee, has found it necessary to issue a statement pointing out to proponents of the proposed 4-cent gasoline tax in Maryland the fact that a similar levy can not be made in the District until the next session of Congress, if ever at that time. Those behind the Maryland measure have been advancing the argument that a similar step will be taken immediately by the District if the increase is voted at Annapolis. Filling station operators in nearby counties are fighting the increase on the ground that if it should become effective they will be unable to compete with Washington operators.

It was only upon the insistence of Maryland that the local gasoline tax was imposed. Until several years ago Maryland refused to recognize local automobile licenses, basing its stand on the fact that its tax created a gasoline price differential which reacted unfavorably against merchants of this commodity in contiguous communities. Not until Congress passed legislation imposing a 2-cent tax on gasoline purchased within the District was license reciprocity established.

There is no quarrel with conditions as they now exist nor would the public be inclined to complain against an increased levy should it be found necessary for revenue raising purposes. The gasoline tax is generally regarded as an equitable and just method of raising funds for street maintenance and improvement, and the public has submitted cheerfully to the 2-cent levy in the knowledge that every penny collected was to be spent upon the highway system which makes motoring possible and pleasant. If Maryland, however, which apparently feels it necessary to double its revenues from this course, attempts to thrust a similar increase on District motorists, it will be vigorously resented and undoubtedly opposed. The levy on local gasoline sales is a matter to be decided on its own merits.

VACCINATION FACTS.

Because of statements circulated widely throughout the country wherein it is charged that vaccination as a preventive against smallpox has been followed in numerous instances by blood diseases more dreaded than that which vaccination prevents, the United States public health service has issued a bulletin in which the inaccuracy of the stories is demonstrated. The bulletin is signed by Surgeon General Ireland, of the army, and by Surgeon General Stitt, of the navy, as well as by Surgeon General Cumming, of the public health service.

Since 1917, says the bulletin, the army has vaccinated approximately 4,700,000 members of its personnel, and vaccination was administered to 950,000 officers and men of the navy during the same period. Of these 5,650,000, not one ever developed the case of blood poisoning as a result of vaccination. Also, it is pointed out, the public health service has vaccinated 2,918,748 persons in carrying out its quarantine, immigration and hospital work, and in addition more than 2,000,000 others were treated by local and State health authorities in cooperation with the service, making a grand total of more than 10,500,000 vaccinations recorded by the government medical services. Not one of the three surgeons general who signed the bulletin has ever received an allegation that any individual contracted blood disease as a result of vaccination.

That there is absolutely no danger from "blood disease" following proper vaccination is evident when it is known that under the act of Congress of July, 1902, "all establishments producing smallpox vaccine for interstate sale must be licensed by the Secretary of the Treasury upon the recommendation of the public health service." The production is controlled by regulations drawn up by a board composed of the surgeons whose signatures are attached to the bulletin.

The vaccine used in the millions of cases referred to is exactly the same as that used by physicians in private practice throughout the United States.

The bulletin is issued to reassure the public and to allay any fears that may exist through the circulation of false reports of the inoculation with the germs of a loathsome disease of those who submit to vaccination as a preventive against smallpox.

"No Comparison!"

"There's simply no comparison in my appearance when I use just any face powder and when I use the delightful Black and White Face Powder," says attractive Miss Ann Horan, 624 88th St., Brooklyn, N. Y. "So after this I'm never going to use any other!" This is an example of the many enthusiastic letters we have received from women who have tried our product and found it superior to all others.

Today is Thursday, and how the weeks spin along! Already the little ones are beginning to show, but what is to be nice in one's house than a table bearing a great bowl of spring blooms, whether they come from one's own garden or from the flower stall in the market place. Spring is spring-making the time of the year when it is not only delightful to have, but an eminent necessity, and that long walk in the country must be taken. And spring makes me feel, too, that my bit of a garden is impatiently waiting to be putted in; that the hot sun is making the earth need loosening about their roots, and that soon, very soon, I may plant my sweet peas in their six inches of soil and later in the year reap the harvest of grey-green blossoms.

But there is something—Lent, always along with its numerous fast days for many of our readers. And for the menu today I have a dish that is new, at least, to this column—haddock in casserole, with a highly seasoned, delicious sauce. Numerous things can be served with this dish, but for a change I have selected potato rössles, and creamed carrots with a salad that is a standby.

Remove the skin from a slice of haddock and fry it brown on both sides. Then add a small amount of flour to the pan, and when the onion begins to discolor, add two cups of canned tomatoes that have been strained, using only the juice, and turn the tomato into the onion and garlic mixture. In a separate dish heat a fourth cup of oil and add to it five tablespoons of flour, stir-

Grandmother's

Old Stone Cookie Jar

ONE of the things you love to remember is your childhood visits to Grandmother's old stone cookie jar.

I don't believe you ever were disappointed, for although Grandmother had to stand and roll and cut cookies she always found time to do it.

Today we have an easier, quicker way to make cookies than Grandmother had. The cookies for which recipes are printed below call for no rolling and cutting. I am sure they will gladden the heart of any child.

I make these cookies with Crisco and not a single person who has tasted them can tell them from cookies made with expensive butter. And as Crisco itself stays sweet and fresh so long it keeps these cookies fresh a long time, too.

Nut Wafer Cookies

Sliced instead of rolled and cut. Use Crisco and see how easy it is to cream with sugar. Crisco keeps so long you can double this recipe and keep the rolls in the ice box a long time, slicing and baking as you need them. Grease your pans with Crisco and you won't need to wash them between bittings.

1 cup brown sugar 3 eggs, well beaten
1 cup white sugar 2 teaspoons soda
1 1/2 cups melted Crisco 1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt or other spice
3 cups pastry flour, 1 cup chopped nuts sifted twice (blanched almonds are best)

Cream Crisco with sugar. Add eggs slowly, mixing thoroughly. Add nuts. Then dry ingredients sifted together twice. Shape into roll about 2 1/2 to 3 inches in diameter. Put in Criscoed pan in ice box overnight. When ready to bake, slice and bake in hot oven (425° F.). Makes about 75 cookies.

ness, for this pie, of all pies, requires a delicate case to hold its delicateness.

For once we have finished the menu in time to add a few of the remaining requested recipes. And now I add eight here and now, as I finish this at the end of the day, that I had not known that there were so many interested friends of this department and Housekeeper in the outside world. Letters have poured in and they have been delightful letters, filled with the splendid spirit that has marked our work together since its early beginning, and I do want to thank these friends—although I did not have time to answer each and every one of these letters—for their expressions that are at once stimulating and heart warming—and to say that I feel that I must indeed require much of myself to live up to the nice things that have been written and said to me.

REQUEST RECIPES.

Old-Fashioned Stewed Cabbage.

(G. R. L.)

Shred two small cabbages a bit coarser than for cole slaw and parboil with a small piece of dried red pepper for a few moments. Pour off the water and add three tablespoons of vinegar, a small piece of butter and a large piece of bacon or chicken fat. Cover closely and let cabbage simmer gently for a half hour. Season with salt and red pepper when done, if it is necessary.

Potato Rössles.

Peel six medium size potatoes and let them remain in cold water at least half an hour, then place them in boiling water and set back on the range to permit the steam to escape. Mash them fine and mix with them a tablespoon of butter, a teaspoon of salt, a sprinkling of pepper, two raw eggs that have been beaten. Form these into cakes by pressing small quantities into a tablespoon and lay them upon a buttered pan and let them cook for a minute or two, then turn and loosen about their roots, and that soon, very soon, I may plant my sweet peas in their six inches of soil and later in the year reap the harvest of grey-green blossoms.

One pint of sour milk, two eggs, a teaspoon of salt, one of soda, and enough meal to make a batter. Beat the yolks of the eggs and add the milk and then the salt and the meal. Dissolve the soda in a little warm milk and add to the mixture, and, lastly, add the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake.

Creamed Cakes.

One pint of sour milk, two eggs, a teaspoon of salt, one of soda, and enough meal to make a batter. Beat the yolks of the eggs and add the milk and then the salt and the meal. Dissolve the soda in a little warm milk and add to the mixture, and, lastly, add the beaten whites of the eggs. Bake.

SYKES, FEARING RADIO, REHEARSES ADDRESS

Goes to See Microphone on Learning of Big Hook-Up for Speech.

Having heard what happened to other speakers and not desiring to take chances, it is understood, Judge Eugene O. Sykes, of Mississippi, vice chairman and lawyer member of the Federal radio commission, on learning that his speech tonight probably would be carried by a hook-up second largest only to that recently of President Coolidge, had a dress rehearsal all his own yesterday at WRC, from where he will speak.

Judge Coolidge's speech was carried by 42 stations, believed to be a world's record, and, according to radio authorities, the next highest was 24 stations, which tied in Gen. Pershing's national defense day test seven months ago. The speech will be heard from tonight, but it is expected that upward of 30 stations will carry Commissioner Sykes' speech with the chain extending to the Pacific coast.

Notwithstanding the fact Judge Sykes now finds himself one of the country's leading figures in the control of radio, the thought of addressing a microphone to a group of untrained listeners evidently was enough to cause him to make a hurried trip to WRC to see if a microphone appeared to be as disconcerting as it has been described.

Center to Give First Jewish Music Night

The first Jewish music festival to be given in Washington will be held Sunday night as the final feature of the Jewish Community Center's winter concert program. Leading artists of Washington and synagogue choirs are cooperating.

Guests will be given by Cantor Abram Haim Kalimus, of the Chev Shalom synagogue, and Albert Shefferman, and the George Washington university string quartet will play. The Eighth Street temple choir will also participate. A soloist will be the young soprano pupil of Benjamin Rainier, scholarship pupil of the Damrosch School of Music. Others who will compose the octette are Dora Minovich, Theodore Rosenfeld, Mrs. Maurine Biggar, Elizabeth Harrow, Dr. William Perle, Haskell Millstone and Sarah Cooper.

CITIZENS THREATEN INJUNCTION ACTION OVER WATER TOWER

Residents of Lyonhurst Protest Against Plans in Arlington County.

ONLY SITE AVAILABLE, ENGINEER DECLARES

Sheriff Kills Rabid Dog Near Cherrydale After Chase of Mile.

ARLINGTON COUNTY, BUREAU OF THE POST, 509, Chelton, Va.
Aroused over the proposed erection of a tower, store room and a reservoir near Lyonhurst, citizens appeared at a special meeting of the board of supervisors last night, and according to Dr. R. N. Sutton, injunction proceedings will be instituted unless the proposal is withdrawn.

Speaking for the delegation, Dr. Sutton said "that the board has acted most unwisely in proposing to construct such a plant in one of the finest residential sections of Arlington county with no consideration for the residents. We would like to want to ask the engineer, Mr. Phillips, this, 'had I built a house on the site which I understand has been purchased what would he do in face of the statement that that is the only available site?'

The question was answered by Mr. Phillips, who said he would be nothing unsightly on the grounds, and it is the only site available.

Dr. Sutton further said: "Mr. Phillips, while he assures us now that there will be nothing unsightly, he may not always be so considerate of the water system, and with this plant there it will surely develop into a business section and ruin our property."

A. B. Cammerer suggested that the board purchase a site not far from the proposed location, and one "that is in the rear of our property and not fronting it as does this one."

Mr. Phillips said consideration to the level of the reservoir on the other side of the river had to be considered and that had been done in this case. He said that the water system was progressing rapidly and there should be no further delay.

E. C. Turnbuckle, chairman of the board, stated any further investigation by the board would be useless, as the engineer had said no other sight was available.

William H. Duncan, clerk of the board, said the deeds to the property were handed to him by Mr. Phillips, and unless instructed otherwise, he would record the deed. On behalf of William J. Ingram the deeds will be held until Friday, when the citizens will meet the engineer and make an effort to relocate the project.

The Arlington County Republican club last night held the first of a series of monthly meetings and entertainments in the Clarendon Community hall, with more than 150 persons present. The program opened with an address of welcome by the president, Carl Marshall.

Mrs. May D. Lightfoot, of Washington, member of the executive committee of the District of Columbia League of Republican Women, the principal speaker, and she was surprised to learn that in Arlington County there is not a women's Republican organization. She said a school of political instruction will be opened in Washington Tuesday and urged all women in Arlington county to attend.

Citizens in the vicinity of Lee highway and Glebe road were alarmed yesterday when a mad dog was discovered racing along the road. Sheriff Howard B. Pleads chased the dog a mile and killed it near Cherrydale.

GIRL AGREED TO DIE, SAYS FATHER, SLAYER

Scholl Admits Killing His Two Children in Abandoned House at Gary.

Chicago, March 16 (By A.P.)—Walter Scholl, wanted for the slaying of his two children, whose bodies were found in an abandoned house at Gary, Ind., yesterday, was arrested here today and confined.

Scholl appeared at St. Peter's church here yesterday afternoon, Father Bede, a priest, told police today, and told the priest he had murdered his children. He had tried to take his own life three times, he said, but on each occasion had lost his nerve.

The priest said Scholl admitted telling the children that he was going to kill them, but he did not mean it. A boy, Donald, told him he did not want to die, but that Vivien, the daughter, declared she was willing to die with her father.

Scholl said that he saturated two sons with an anesthetic and wrapped them around his children's heads and went outside. He returned an hour later and they were still alive, and he then tightened the towels around their throats. Scholl gave as the reason why he did not want his children to suffer because of his estrangement from his wife.

STAR ATTRACTION TO GO ON AIR AT LUNCHEON

Program to Be Broadcast Direct From New York, Includes Opera Troupe.

ST. PATRICK PROGRAMS

Marking a step forward in the development of daylight radio entertainment will be the broadcasting, through WRC at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon of the luncheon of the New York Merchants association, direct from New York city. Some of the best known attractions on the air will be heard, including Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, Godfrey Ludlow, violinist; the South Sea Islanders, the National Cavaliers, and the WEAF grand opera sextet, under the direction of Cesare Sodero. Graham McNamee and Milton J. Cross will act as masters of ceremonies.

As recent as a year ago such a program during daylight hours was unheard of thing, but apparently the time is rapidly approaching when first-class entertainment will be heard over the air during the day time, as well as presidential speeches, and outstanding events.

Otherwise on this the 17th of March, St. Patrick's day programs, with the single exception of an address by Eugene O. Sykes, acting chairman of the Federal radio commission at 7:45 o'clock tonight, will have full sway.

An Irish minstrel show will feature the program of the Eskimos at 9 o'clock. Harry Reeser, leader of this banjo ensemble, promises a program which will be a departure from the usual type of Irish program. Among the Irish selections to be featured are "St. Patrick's Day," "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," and "Medley of Irish Jigs and Reels." Eugene Martinet, who directs the Emerson Hour of Music, is also planning an entire program of Irish songs.

The Archeological Background of St. Patrick's Day will lead off the science news of the week at 7 o'clock from station WMAL and later from the same station that will be heard portions of "The Colleen Bawn," by Dion Boucicault, a special St. Patrick's day feature by Ada Louise Townsend. In fact, WMAL will have a varied evening's program, including the Marjorie Webster Glee club, and winding up with the St. Patrick's day dance from the City club.

On the outside walls during the comfort hour through WEAF at 8 o'clock an offering will be taken around the theme "St. Patrick's Day." The program will describe the New York city at that time, while the musical selections will be those in vogue during the period.

The WEAF ensemble will be on the outside walls during the comfort hour through WEAF at 8 o'clock. The program will present a radio version of "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart's opera, given by the Grand Opera Society of New York.

The WEAF ensemble makes the following declarations:

"No house work, except in case of sickness or at least three children."

"One evening a week out with no explanations."

"A day allowance; no questions asked."

"No razzing by in-laws."

"Preference over wife's relations in all things."

"Final authority in all times."

Monticello Bonds To Be Souvenirs

The 135 original $1,000 bonds for the purchase of Monticello bonds, of Thomas Jefferson, the remains unclaimed, will be sworn as souvenirs. It was announced yesterday by Mrs. Ross Governorneur Hoes, local chairman of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial foundation.

Phil H. Gold, thought the union bond as his intended bride, and the clerk, Harry Reeser, leader of the banjo ensemble, promises a program which will be a departure from the usual type of Irish program. Among the Irish selections to be featured are "St. Patrick's Day," "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," and "Medley of Irish Jigs and Reels."

LIFE OF RESERVE BANKS IS EXPLAINED BY PATON

Making Tenure Undeterminate
Big Feature of McFadden
Act, He Says.

MARKET PRICES STRONG

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Probably the most important single feature of the McFadden bank bill passed in the closing days of Congress is the provision for indeterminate charters for Federal Reserve Banks. Section 18 amends the second subdivision of the fourth paragraph of section 4 of the Federal Reserve act so as to read as follows: "Second. To have succession after the approval of this act until dissolved by act of Congress, or until forfeiture of franchise for violation of law."

"The former law provided succession for a period of 20 years from organization of the bank unless dissolved by act of Congress or unless its franchise became forfeited by some violation of law," writes Thomas B. Paton, general counsel of the American Bankers Association in the current number of the American Bankers association Journal.

Under the new law, as under the old, the summary points out, Congress has the power to amend, extend or terminate the existence of any or all the Federal Reserve Banks at any time it chooses or to enlarge or limit the powers of such banks as it may in its wisdom determine.

The obvious advantage of making the charter indeterminate is to remove the uncertainty of renewal attendant upon the limited 20-year charter due to the exigencies of a political situation at the time renewal is sought and provides assurance to the public of stable government. An historical parallel indicates the disadvantage of limited charters is the refusal by Congress to recharter the Second United States Bank when its charter expired in 1836 and the financial disturbance and injury to the public which followed.

Other sections of the bill taken up in the analysis by the general counsel of the American Bankers association are those bearing on indeterminate national bank charters, dividends, loans, loan investment securities, real estate loans, provisions as to branches, reports to the comptroller of the currency and other important modernizing provisions in the new law.

Sand and Gravel Offered.

Cranes, Parris & Co. are offering today $500,000 worth of an issue of $1,046,000 Columbia Sand & Gravel Co. 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock at $100 a share. Associated with the firm in the offering are G. M. P. Murphy & Co., W. C. Bell & Co., Glover & Flather, Eastman, Dillon & Co., Gray & Johnson, Stein Bros & Boyce, Southern Securities Corporation and Robert Garrett & Sons.

The company is successor to the Columbia Granite & Dredging Co. and is engaged in the business of dredging sand and gravel and stone quarries in the same in the District and surrounding territory. The company also owns and operates extensive stone quarries on the Virginia shore of the Potomac river. Total assets of all properties plus cost of new property and equipment, is put at $1,480,369.00.

Net earnings before Federal taxes and depreciation in 1926 were $264,604.44 and the company earned on preferred stock after taxes and depreciation $10,000. The net earnings of the company for the first two months of the current year show an increase of $10,000 over the corresponding period in 1926.

"Considering the large amount of work of all kinds, public and private, conducted in Washington and the adjoining territory during the next few years," said Clyde B. Asher, president, yesterday, "the prospects for an increased volume of business are very bright."

Market Prices Continue Strong.

Utilities dominated the trading on both the bond and stock sides of the market in yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange with price levels continuing strong.

Capital Trust Company, quoted ex-dividend, began the day at 106 3/4 the level at close of the day before, 39 shares in three lots moved at this price, with 30 shares changing hands at 100 1/2. Washington Gas Light made a nominal gain to 72 1/2 cents of 102 shares.

All three of the bank stocks in which transactions were recorded made advances: American Security & Trust Co. picked up 1/2, to reach 381; Merchants Bank & Trust, which climbed 4 1/2 points to 100 1/2; and Federal-American National moved up 1 point to its recent level of 320.

Mengenthaler Linotype was strong and quoted ex-dividend, sold in three lots totaling 100 shares at 108 1/2. Closing quotation was 108 1/2 bid and 108 asked. Chevy Chase Dairy preferred, which sold on its first day of listing at 101 picked up a 1/2 point and 5 shares changed hands at 101 1/2. National Mortgage & Investment preferred was firm at 80.

With the exception of three sales in Capital Traction 5s at 101 1/2, gas securities only were traded in. Washington Gas Light series "A" sold in the small denominations at 103 1/2, the series "B" at 105, and Georgetown Gas Light 5s sold at 100 1/2.

$1,000,000,000 in Liberty Bonds Presented.

Up to the close of business yesterday more than $1,000,000,000 of the Second Liberty Loan, 5 1/2 per cent, of more than one-third of the total second 4 1/2 outstanding, had been presented for conversion into 5 year 3 1/2 per cent Treasury notes according to announcement by the Treasury yesterday. It was also announced that in order to give other holders of bonds opportunity to convert bonds an opportunity to avail themselves of this offer the Treasury plans to keep the books open until the close of business March 22.

Magill to Visit New Offices.

J. P. Magill, member of the firm of Eastman, Dillon & Co., reached Washington last night and will be at the local offices of the company, 1515 H street northwest, throughout today, according to announcement last night by Arthur F. Parker manager of the office. This is the initial visit of Mr. Magill to the new offices of the company, which it occupied for the first time Monday.

Freight Car Loadings Increase.

A total of 904,931 cars were loaded with revenue freight the week ended March 5. This was an increase of 28,922 cars compared with the corresponding week last year, and an increase of 62,887 cars over the corresponding week in 1925. Computation by the American Railroad Association shows that the total for March 5 was an increase of 71,082 cars over the preceding week this year.

No Institute Classes Tonight.

There will be no classes tonight in the educational department of Washington chapter, American Institute of Banking. Owing to the fact that some of the bank clubs are giving Saint Patrick's Day parties and numerous other entertainments in observance of the day, the classes being given throughout the city, it was deemed best to abandon study for the night.

VIGOROUS RALLY BEGUN BY STEELS AND MOTORS

Nearly All Stocks Gain After Early Dullness; 30 New Highs Scored.

SOME SPECIALTIES WEAK

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 16.—A buoyant stock market in which about 30 new high records were established and net gains ranged up to 8 points, a drop in the discount rate to 3½ per cent, and the announcement that holders of more than $1,000,000 worth of second Liberty loan bonds had accepted the treasury's offer to exchange them for 5-year 3½ per cent notes, were outstanding developments today in the financial world. Money outside the Stock Exchange was available at 3½ per cent, and some large amounts were begged.

The stock market started slowly, with numerous weak spots which gave way under selling pressure, and when the market had turned, through the list before the turn came, the easing of the money condition, the realization by the bear party that the stock market was in a fairly good technical position, and evidence that investors, in particular, had decided to stop short of operations on the short side. Heavy buying of Steel and Motors started the upward climb, and shortly afterward almost anything of ferred in any division of the list was buoyed up by buyers. Prices of utilities, rails, wire, equities, oil stocks, copers, sugars, tobacco and merchandising stocks became more or less active in the vigorous upswing.

In the periods of depression and buoyancy the gilt edged stocks showed greatest strength. The telephone telegraph, in which buying and selling usually is of the most cautious nature, jumped 8 points to a new high at 165½ and closed a point under the top at a net gain of 7½ points. Dupont, too, in a new high ground at 21. up.

The biggest business of the day was transacted in General Motors, with a turnover of 213,000 shares and the establishment of a new peak at 178¾, a gain of 4½ over yesterday's final price.

U. S. Steel, Common, old and new, went to new high levels under fairly active demand, but this movement was of a more conservative character than that displayed in many other parts of the list. Independent steels ended the day at another record, their movements were not so sprightly.

The buoyancy of General Motors and the steady strength of steel were due in some measure to the tone of the weekly trade reviews and to the publication of the General Motor's latest sales figures. These reviews reported better demand from automobile manufacturers, railroad equipment companies and the oil industry. Operating at 90 per cent of capacity the steel industry is accumulating some reserves again after a long period of low-able General Motors sheet had been expected, but very few realized that the sales of dealers would jump, as they did, from $4,971 in February, 1926, to 102,925 last month.

The carrier stocks were about the last to move, but when they did, they leaders for the advance, but when the turn came they moved snappily and drew interest away from many of the formerly active industrial issues. The usual revealed net advances ranging up to 12½ per cent, best gains being ½ per cent by Wabco, Atchison, Col., & Northern, New York Central, & & Northern, Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western, Rock Island, Chicago Great Western, Chicago Northwestern, Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, Northern, Southern, Great Northern Pacific, Erie first preferred, Hudson & Manhattan, Kansas City Southern, Lehigh Valley, Missouri Pacific, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Norfolk & Western, New Haven, Reading, St. Louis-Southeastern, & Southern, Southern Railway, Nickel Plate and Union Pacific.

Not all movements, even in the late session, were toward higher levels, however, some specialties displaying considerable weakness. Southern Dairies issue was subjected to severe pressure and broke through its long-standing resistance at 12½, while Wabco, P. & T. Pictures slipped back further and Industrial Alcohol lost too, reversed themselves when pressure and rail rallied briskly in recovering yesterday's setback, but the important development of the day was another rise in the market, up to 165½, the high level of the year. In response to a continuation of buying believed to have originated in governmental sources.

CURB MARKET REVIEW.

New York, March 16 (By the Associated Press)—Further buying interest developed in the curb market during the general list eventually swayed upward, coincident with the lowering of stock market rates and the publication of some stock market news. The volume of business did not reach that of yesterday, signs of increased speculative interest were apparent, a number of stocks of which appeared to be under pool manipulation.

Selling of the oils was checked by unconfirmed rumors that some of the Seminole wells were running into water, but these reports were quickly denied by operators in that region who said only that the wells were leaking and that production there would be increased to 400,000 barrels daily within a short time. Vacuum was bid up sharply on reports of large oil exports, but most of the other active issues showed only narrow fractional gains.

General Fireproofing again was the outstanding feature in the industrial list, soaring 10 points to a new high record at 80. Further accumulation of the issue of 5 cents a share.

The Goodrich Tire and Stock Auto moved up 3 points to a new peak at 41½, while Auburn Auto moved up 8 points to a new peak at 41, on reports of large current earnings. The market was noted for its unusual telephone, radio, leather, Consolidated Gas and Johns Manville, but Bamberg, Mead Johns, Pullman and U. S. Distributing were held at 2½ points at 40½, a new high, was the only public utility to attract any attention.

Central Nine Loses Five Regulars

3 Infielders and 2 Outfielders Fail in Studies.

Is Severe Blow to the Team; Eastern Now Heavy Favorite.

THE hopes of Central High school in the coming interhigh baseball series were dealt a severe jolt yesterday with the announcement that five regular players would be ineligible for the team because of scholastic difficulties.

The players are Cross, first base; Fisher, second base; Boyd, third base; McCann and Schaeffer, outfielders.

The announcement came with a report that the six schools advancing examinations held in all public high schools of the city, and in which local scholastic athletes are obliged to make a creditable showing in order to be eligible for competition.

The other city high schools, Eastern, Tech, Business and Western, felt no athletic casualties from the grim hand of examinations, which annually prove a bugbear to many of the student athletes.

An opportunity will be given to the men to make up their deficient work at the next trimester tests, which will be held May 10, but with Central awaiting the opening game of the season on April 29, with trepidation, facing the necessity of developing new material to take the place of the players lost.

With Central having luck, Eastern now, more than ever before, rules a heavy favorite to win the inter-high crown for the second successive year. John ("Biggy") Quinn, veteran pitcher, is in uniform, and on him the Eastern squad is pinning most of its hopes.

Coach Glenn is beginning his first year with the Marauders. Eastern, and will have little new material to work with. Western High is better equipped with material, but has been out but little over a week, and no accurate line can be obtained on the Western's squad.

On present form, it looks as though Eastern will be the team. Eastern have been in action, while the others have not. The Central players are ironed out in time to enable them to make a good showing in the interhigh games.

Sacramento to Raise Million for Olympics

Sacramento, Calif., March 16 (By A.P.)—A bill authorizing a $1,000,000 bond issue to finance the staging of the Olympic games in Los Angeles in 1932 was introduced in the legislature today. Senator, the measure said it would have the support of the present State administration.

Of Davis Cup Draw

The draw for play in the Davis cup challenge matches will be made promptly at noon today by President Coolidge and the diplomatic representatives of the 25 competing nations.

Last minute entries of Spain and Sweden swelled the entry list to the largest in the history of the play for the historic cup, donated by Dwight Davis, Secretary of War in 1900.

Women Net Favorites Advance in Tourney

Brockline, Mass., March 16 (By A.P.)—Straight-set victories for the four seeded teams in the women's national indoor doubles tennis championship, which carried them to the semifinals, and then to the final, the national indoor mixed doubles filled eleven solid hours of play at the Longwood covered courts here today.

A decisive victory scored by Mrs. George W. Wrightson, of Brockline, and Mrs. Marion Zidell, of Boston, Mrs. Williamson, Dr. Mrs. E. R. Hardwick and Mrs. E. R. Milton established the former title holders as favorites for the doubles crown. Mrs. Jessup withdrew from the singles because of a lame arm but she had mixed effects-day wins and her partner won their day to a 6-0, 6-2 triumph. Their opponents in the semifinals Friday will be Mrs. Frank H. Godfrey and Miss Isabella Lee Mumford, who lost only one game in their match today.

Realtors Revert to Baseball As Boom in Florida Subsides

Braves in Control of St. Petersburg Diamond and Have Pick of Opponents; Ruppert Sees Boston Beat Giants.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16.—The ball clubs in the Florida zone are finding restive and there are signs of mass migration toward this city, which has a large population of spendthrift Northerners who think absolutely nothing of spending 50 cents to see a game of baseball played by Negroes. York, once in a day, led by the Mr. McGraw, and played the Braves in the park on the water front. The Athletics are due tomorrow, with them. Mr. Ty Cobb is here, and a quantity of general of the Cincinnati club has been making a round of the delicatessens, buying up thousands of fathoms of blutwurst and weinerwurst for Mr. Harry Heimann, who has decided to bring his team over from Germany to base in Orlando to spend a week.

The Yankees rank as one of the resident clubs of St. Petersburg, as they make their base here, but the Braves are the leaders in the regular ball park and Miller Huggins has taken his team out to the suburbs for their recreation. Furthermore, any team desiring to draw

WATKINSON LUCKY TO WIN FOURTH AT NEW ORLEANS

Scotland Bolts To Outside Of Track

Girl Scout Triumphs Over Fillies and Mares in Fifth.

Grand Bey Defeats 4-Year-Olds in the Sixth Race.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, La., March 16 (By A. P.)—F. W. Barlow's colt, Watkinson, ridden by Pasquier, fell heir to the Hanover purse, one of the chief attractions on the program at Jefferson Park, after the race Watkinson, then the lengths behind the favorite, Scotland, entering the stretch of the 6-furlong dash, passed into the lead when Scotland bolted to the outside fence.

Scotland had a dozen lengths, but came again with a rush when straightened out in the stretch and made up much ground, but far too late to catch Watkinson, which won by three lengths. Creek Indian was third.

The Madison purse, at 1 mile, shared with the Hanover purse interest of the card.

Pandale, ridden by Chiavetta, and coupled with Quicken as the Wild Rose farm entry, accounted for the Helter Skelter purse, which Watkinson was first on the card. Pandale broke fast, showing fine speed and always held her field safe. All Callao, owned by the Greentree stable, was a fast-finishing second and Quicken lasted to hold third place.

H. Brunner's filly Finish and Jockey Goldie Johnson proved a winning combination in the third race, which was at 1 1/16 miles, for another cheap field. Following the favorite, Sabina, into the stretch, Finish forged to the front inside the last furlong and was drawing clear at the end. Sabina held to second place and Chief Tierney third.

Beaverwood, owned by Barnett & Seamer, and ridden by L. Craver, won the second race, which brought out a field of as cheap horses as have raced here at winter. Beaverwood took the lead in the stretch and had a safe lead over Upton, while Blennerhassett was third.

The classiest race of the day was the Magdalene purse at one mile for fillies and mares, and the odds-on favorite, Da Stables' mare, Girl Scout, returning to her best form and making every post a winning one, beating the Idle Hour's Billie Burke, the favorite, to the wire by three lengths. H. Knebley's King Rose, third.

The sixth race, which was at a mile and a furlong, brought out a splendid field of the best platers here and wound up as an easy victory for H. Stark & Co.'s gelding, Star Pick. Star Pick, seen him in the front at once and Grand Bey, steaming a long lead, had the race safe when Resourceful moving around the first flight with a rush, passed into second place. Miss Misty, which had held off well all the way, was third. Grand Bey was the betting choice, paying $5.40 for a $2 ticket.

The Sportswoman

By DOROTHY L. GREENE.

Company F stands with 5 wins and 2 losses in the league as a result of their victories last night over the Jessup Community Center Juniors in the Mayfield armory door. The winners outplayed the Center sextet to win, 21 to 1.

Misses Weirich and England had their pointers for Company F. The Center players had some difficulty in getting used to the large door, but played a good game.

Company F. Positions: J. C. G. Jr., H. P. Whalen, G. W. Wolfman, H. H. Heiner, H. G. Parks, W. W. Wurtsch, W. W. McLean, H. Korn for England, Englund for H. Heiner, Kerr for Weirich, Guidenborg for Street, Street for Wurtsch, W. W. McLean for Parks, Weirich (two), J. E. Gould, England (3), Wurtsch (two), W. W. McLean (one).

PRINCESS SEXTET WINS.

The Princess S. C. basketball team had little difficulty defeating the girls' five of the Second Baptist church at the Haines Junior High school gymnasium last night by a 48-to-13 score. Miss Dowd scored fifteen field goals, the winners.

Princess S. C. FG Second Baptist: G. P. P. Dowd, 15; H. D. A. Atkins, 11; S. Hall, 11; R. B. B. Atkins, 11; J. Jones, 6; H. Hodder, 6; H. O. Henderson, 6; H. Russell, 6; H. N. Henley, 6. Total: 6. 13.

Total: 21. 04. Time of periods: Ten minutes quarters.

HORSE SHOW SATURDAY.

Girls from various private schools in the city will participate in a horse show at the Riding and Hunt club at 2:30 p.m. Saturday afternoon. Schools which will be represented by riders include Holton Arms, Miss Madeira school, Georgetown Visitation convent, Trinity college and the Potowmack school. The event is under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Jackson and Mrs. Davis of the club. There have been many entries as follows: Best rider, 10 years and under; best rider, between 10 and 15 years; best rider, from any school; best team of three from any school; open jumpers, 3½ feet; best pony, and musical stalls.

POLOISTS PLAN SEASON.

Gathering gaiters and pounding hoofs will soon herald the start of the Park Polo field if the present fair weather holds long enough to dry out the turf.

The Washington Women's Polo association is planning an early start in an effort to get in some of the posted matches of the polo season and will meet to consider their program next week. Miss Lydia Archibald, president of the organization, is expected home within a few days, and the date of the meeting will be announced on her arrival.

ARRIVAL AT HOLTON ARMS.

Holton Arms school will celebrate the annual Blue and White weekend on Friday and Saturday with competitions in which the entire student body will participate.

Games for the lower grades, a track meet, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, were held yesterday. The tennis courts, a drill Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock, in which the first and second Blue squads will oppose the first and second White squads, and a first team Blue and White basketball Saturday at 8:15 p.m. are included in the program.

The Whites held the school trophy which was won last year, but the Blues already have a 16-point lead after the first two games, preliminary basketball matches which they won Tuesday and yesterday.

The Blue teams which triumphed were the sixth and seventh grade sextet which defeated the sophomores 31 to 30, the second team which won 34-22 and the third team which won 18-16 game yesterday afternoon.

LEAGUE GAME POSTPONED.

The Recreation league match scheduled for tonight between the Field Hockey club and the Jewish Community Center boys has been postponed to next Wednesday, March 28 on the Holton Arms floor.

BASEBALL IN FLORIDA REVIEWED BY PEGLER

tantes were supposed to recline on a shaded veranda, sipping frosted drinks with mint in them, present an appearance of dejection and abandonment.

The dog races have been jawn out of the State by the irresistible fury of the night-nineties element, and at present the only divisions remaining in St. Petersburg are the ball games, the horseshoe pitching tournaments and the afternoon program of wheel chair races on the boardwalk.

Perhaps eventually something will be done to protect the life and limb of the younger element from the recklessness of the older set who careen about those juggernauts. Your correspondent was once run down by the way the driver, an elderly lady with the speed mania blazing in her eyes, yelled, "Wake up, you darn fool."

Perhaps, too, something will be done to regulate the horseshoe pitching, because your correspondent has heard ugly rumors to the effect that some big-money gamblers raised a pool of 50 cents and cleaned up the other day.

With the dog races forbidden and the dogs presumably converted into ponies, the way may be clear for us to what Mr. Bush Ruth does with his evenings and his money. The dogs took up a great deal of both last spring, but inasmuch as his board and room are paid for by Jake Ruppert it is hard to see why an man like Mr. Ruth's fees, temperance can find a proper outlet for his sporting enthusiasm and his money now. Probably he has become a punchbowl gambler, as this seems to be the only form of gambling that has not yet been outlawed.

The Yankees were having themselves this morning and the Babe was out for light exercise, still favoring his charleyhorse. In the afternoon he was supposed to be among the crowd watching the Giants and Braves.

Bush Drills Pirates In Technical Baseball

Pasco, Fla., March 15. (By A. T.).—A little technical baseball, (By A. T.).—A little technical baseball, occupied the attention of the Pittsburgh Pirates in an hour and a half's work out this morning. The players received special training back to first base ahead of the coming throw after taking a long lead off.

Reports that Ray Kremer was being kept from the mound because of trouble with his throwing arm were denied by Manager Donie Bush, who said the pitchers who wanted to "know quantity" when they wanted to know over several of the prospects. Kremer had an attack of grippe shortly after the camp opened and Bush wants to give him plenty of time to get into condition.
